NOTES ON NEWS OF THE DAY.

BOULANGER contested 451 cantons in the French elections yesterday, and carried only twelve. He would soon drop out of sight if his enemies would let him alone.

The name of the Portuguese who fired a shot at the good Emperor Dom Pedro of Brazil on the night of the 16th inst. is Adrians Valle. He says he was instigated to the act by a republican association.

JOHN BROWN, the colored man who murdered old Dr. Jones in Cincinnati and threw his body into the catch-basin of a sewer, has confessed his crime and is in jail. The murderer of Dr. Cronin has more "sand." Alexander Sullivan has not confessed.

The South Dakota constitutional convention wants ballot reform on the Australian plan, but finds itself restrained by the terms of the Omnibus bill for admitting the territories into the Union. Ballot reform and prohibition will therefore be left for the Legislature to deal with.

MARY WILLIAMS of Media, Pa., was called before 'Squire Preston last week, upon the charge of being a common scold, but of using profane expressions. The 'Squire imposed the full penalty of the law, 65 cents per oath, and the total amounted to nearly $10. This is why Mary spent the Sabbath in the Media jail.

MITCHELL announces that he is ready to fight Sullivan. Now for another hippodrome, with thousands in it and nobody hurt. Mitchell has doubtless been training his legs again. The skill with which he kept out of Sullivan's way in France was greatly to his credit as an exemplar of the non-resistance philosophy.

CORNELIUS HUBBS, who eloped with Ada Atkins, at Chico, Cal., on the day before she was to have married Raymond Bierce, died yesterday of the wounds received in the fight on Thursday last. Bierce died the same day. Ada is now a widow, with husband and affianced lover both dead. Mrs. Barney, Ada's mother, has been arrested on the charge that she conspired with Bierce to dispose of Hubbs.

SENATOR JOHN SHERMAN has written a letter from Paris to a friend in Columbus, endorsing in the heartiest manner the renomination of Foraker, and promising to come home in September and take an active hand in the canvass. This snuffs out the hopes of the Ohio Democrats that Republican discussions would give them the state. They appear to have expected that Sherman would kick, because he and Foraker had not always agreed.

The Anarchist saloon-keepers of Cincinnati, to the number of 170, carried out their purpose of keeping open doors yesterday, but the police succeeded in making 150 arrests. In one quarter known as "Over the Rhine," a mob of 1,500 attacked the police with sticks and stones, but the latter held their ground. A number of saloon-keepers have been discovered who are in favor of obeying the law, and yesterday's energetic lesson is expected to bring others over to their side.

The New Hamburg-American steamship Columbia has smashed all previous trip records. From Queenstown to Sandy Hook her time was 6 days, 3 hours and 27 minutes. The best time ever made was by the City of Paris, 5 days and 23 hours, after her machinery had worn smooth. The builders of the Columbia were required to guarantee 211 miles an hour. She made 45 miles in one hour and forty-five minutes, or at the rate of nearly 26 miles an hour.

"UNCLE ELI" SAULSBURY is willing that Mr. Bayard should run for Governor of Delaware, and believes that if the entire party should back him he would be elected. Bayard is wondering whether Uncle Eli will back him. He has suffered so great a political collapse already that he is said to be very nervous over the prospect. He can better afford to keep out of politics than to be beaten by a Republican, as he is pretty sure to be, since there is going to be a fair election.

For the year ended June 30th the exports of merchandise from the United States amounted to $742,401,799 and the imports into the country to $745,127,476. This leaves a balance of $2,725,677 on the wrong side of the ledger. For the year 1887-88 the balance against the United States was $28,002,697. During the month of June last the imports of merchandise were $1,700,000 less than for June 1888, and the exports $3,000,000 greater. This is the first favorable showing for American trade in three years.

PRESIDENT HARRISON was driven to a little country house at Oakland, Md., yesterday, over six miles of rough mountain road. Attorney General Miller was the driver, and Senator Davis went also. On arriving the Presidential party were seated in the third pew in front of the minister, being the only one that was cushioned. The clergyman, Rev. Mr. Poult, after the sermon naively invited the party to come again by remarking, "Strangers are gladly welcomed here." During the discourse the President gave close attention, and Miller and Davis kept awake.

The Tribune fresh air fund sent 1,100 children into the country last week. Parties were sent into New York, New Jersey, New Hampshire and Vermont. Some of the New York parties were sent as far as Chautauque, Franklin and Lewis counties, and one was received at Shandaken. It was pretty cool last week, but pure air in the great city was probably not more abundant on that account. A corps of a dozen physicians examines each party before its departure, to prevent sending into the country any contagious disease. Over 7,000 children have already been sent out this summer at the expense of the fund. The receipts of the fund amount to $15,964.95 and the expenses to date to $15,053.68. There was a balance of only $311.27 on hand this morning. Twenty bands of children are booked to start this week, and more contributions are anxiously looked for by them.

EFFECTS OF A WESTERN STORM.

Forty-Four Alarms of Fire in Chicago, and A Loss of Over $1,000,000.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

CHICAGO, July 29.—The storm of Saturday night was even more severe than had been supposed, great as was the uproot of the elements and so visible the effects. The unprecedented rain-fall, high wind, and incessant lightning caused a loss of property that is difficult to estimate. All kinds of property suffered—goods in cellars and basements, streets, shade trees, sidewalks, lawns, shrubbery, drive-ways, unfinished houses and dwellings. There were 44 alarms of fire caused by lightning, and most from the destruction of the insulation of the electric light wire. Fire, water, wind and hail combined caused a loss in excess of $1,000,000 and possibly as much again. The sewers were unequal to the task of carrying the water that fell. A result of the storm will probably be an agitation of the matter looking toward a radical improvement in the drainage facilities. The sewerage system of Chicago was originally planned with a view to the necessities of a population of 100,000. With a population nine or ten times as great as that it is vastly overtaxed.

ASHLAND, Wis., July 29.—The severest storm ever known here struck this City on Saturday afternoon. It came in the shape of a towering cloud, that seemed to burst over the City, accompanied by a terrific wind which filled the air with all kinds of loose matter. Trees were twisted from their roots. A house was carried from its foundation and wrecked. The Superior Lumber Company's refuse-burner was blown down. The smoke-stack of another mill was also wrecked. Nearly 20,000 feet of lumber was blown off the dock into the Bay. There was no loss of life.

NATCHEZ, Miss., July 29.—A severe storm passed over this City and vicinity on Saturday night.

Referee Fitzpatrick, who engineered the Sullivan-Kilrain fight, has this to say about Governor Lowry, of Mississippi: "I think that Governor Lowry will lift this matter to the very bottom. My advice to the pugilists in New-Orleans was to go right to Mississippi and give themselves up to the authorities. The day that Sullivan left New Orleans I impressed the importance of this on Muldoon. Of course, we all have a horror of jails, but at the same time it is better to submit to the inevitable. I went and gave myself into custody, and was promptly bailed. That would have been the proper thing for Sullivan, Kilrain and others to do. The longer they remain away the more difficult will it be to bail them when they are caught. The principals are in no danger of arrest at present. I do not think that Governor Lowry will take any action in the matter until the Grand Jury meets in October. Then indictments will probably be secured, and the principals will be brought to the State and tried. The easiest way is the best. That is why I should advise those concerned to go right down there and settle the matter as soon as possible. The men can be extradited from any State in the Union, and the Mississippi authorities will follow the matter to the end."

The funeral of the mother of the famous Spanish bull-fighter Frascuelo, which took place a few days ago, has been one of the sights of Madrid. The old lady, who passed her life in constant anxiety about her darling son, died while he was killing six bulls in the arena. Frascuelo worshipped her and had her buried in princely state. The lead coffin, richly decorated with ornaments, was carried to the house by four of his comrades, eight black horses drew the elegant funeral, and the principal, together with Frascuelo, walked at the head of the procession. The most famous bull-fighters of the town; 160 carriages followed, and a large crowd of persons belonging to all classes joined the procession.

WHITE CLOUD SIGNS THE TREATY.

What the Indians Had to Say About the Treaty of the Continent of Lands.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

WHITE EARTH RESERVATION, MINN., July 29.—The last explanations of the act presented by the Chippewa Commission have been asked for and answered on this reservation and the signature of White Cloud, the leading Chief, has been appended to the agreement. At the opening of the session Saturday he wanted to know if it could be made certain that this reservation would be organized into a separate county, so they might control the amount of their taxes. He was reminded by his son, Charles Wright, an Episcopal clergyman, that Becker County had sent an Assessor into the reservation last year to get the value of their personal property, but that he had not taken any valuation because he was afraid the Indians would brain him. They were assured there was no danger of the premature extension over them of the laws and were informed regarding the exemption from a levy on household goods, farming implements, tools, etc.

THE HIGH LICENSE QUESTION.

The Joint Committee on High License in New York, composed of sub-committees from the Church Temperance Society, the Society for the Prevention of Crime, and the Citizens' Committee on High License, has issued an address to the people of the state on "Political Parties and the Liquor Traffic." As this joint committee is made up impartially of Republicans and Democrats, including among the latter Gen. Wager Swayne, Col. B. F. Watson, ex-Judge Aronson and Dorman B. Eaton, the language of the address is significant of a shifting of party lines on the question. It starts out with the very strong assertion that "the evils springing from the liquor traffic are regarded by the great body of the intelligent and candid people of the state of New York as the most serious and threatening within the sphere of legislation." It adds that this great body of people "feel humiliated and indignant as they see the greatest state of the Union left behind many of its sister states in the character and efficiency of its laws for the suppression of the great hotbeds of poverty, vice and crime." And it then looks for a remedy through the action of the Legislature, or an indefinite postponement of the reform. It is not satisfied with the action of the Legislature in the past, and points to the recent votes on Prohibition in Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Rhode Island in proof that what that party is aiming for is not gaining ground and is to remain impossible of attainment for many years. But the hope of the success of the high license principle is based on the proven fidelity of the Republican party to the principle and the dissatisfaction of the better class of Democrats with the position in which their party has been placed by Gov. Hill. It even tries not without hope to discover signs of improvement in the Governor himself. On these points we quote:

The Church Temperance Society, the Society for the Prevention of Crime, and the Citizens' Committee on High License of the City of New York, composed of adherents of both great parties, and acting together through a joint executive committee, from the beginning treated the whole question of liquor traffic legislation as a common cause in its nature, and a subject upon which the friends of good morals and good government in all parties ought to unite. The temperance bill, which those bodies prepared or promoted in 1887, 1888 and 1889, rested on this view of the subject. It was not the result of party spirit, but of a common conviction that the liquor traffic was a great evil, and that it should be met by the action of the Legislature, and that the support of a High License policy in this state has, up to this time, come from the Republican party, while the Democratic opposition has come from a Democratic Governor and the Democrats in the Legislature who have followed his lead.

It remains to be seen, however, whether the real attitude of the two parties in the liquor traffic question is not a different one. There are many friends of High License in the Democratic party, some of whom have been constrained to silence by party discipline, and are now, more than ever before, dissatisfied with the attitude of their party and of the Governor. It is not too late for the friends of High License in all parties to co-operate, to a useful extent, at least, in some effective and non-partisan policy; though the difficulties in so doing are certainly not less than when that course was originally proposed by the Republican party. There are significant indications that the Democratic party sees the peril of being further identified with a policy which is losing its popularity, and that the better sentiment of the community on the subject have been rapidly gaining strength, while the liquor dealers' politics have been as rapidly becoming infatuated and more and more alienated from the Democratic party. The facts have been so strikingly illustrated that in the state of New York no longer ago than 1884, neither the great party, willing to confront the liquor traffic and whiskey drinking influence in its platform. How great the change in five years! One party has been distinctly committed to a High License policy. The wise leaders of the other are denouncing and anxious to do so, and the Governor seems to be committing it to a high license and ruinous dependence upon liquor for his influence. It ought to be said, however, to his credit, that his proposal of the law for the Excise Commission last year shows his sense of the importance of the question, and that he has not been too late for the friends of High License to begin their work. The fact is, however, that his plan involved a co-operation of both the great parties in removing them from the political party of the liquor traffic, and that the Democratic party, from the beginning, what the Governor does not comprehend, or, perhaps, shrinks from, is the need of actually confronting the liquor traffic and its demands of the grog-shop keepers and of bringing them to terms.

The address closes with some practical suggestions in regard to a plan of campaign which will aid in promoting success. Copies of the address can be procured by communicating with John B. Pine, Secretary of the Joint Committee on High License, 50 Pine-street, New York.

MRS. HARRISON'S REQUEST.

Because the White House met the official and social demands of 100,000,000, it is remarkable that it is inadequate for 10,000,000! Washington Post.

Nonsense! The increase of the population has nothing to do with the matter. The fact is, the White House has been too small for the President's duties, and the President's duties have been vastly greater and heavier and more numerous than in the time of Harrison and Baby McKee. —New York Sun.

Another whack at Baby McKee! And yet maternal anxiety may very properly have been something to do with Mrs. Harrison's expressed desire for some changes at the White House that would give the family more room. Very few President's families have been as domestic as the Harrisons, and the American people would gladly pay something for a pure, quiet, old-fashioned example of domesticity in the White House. The arrangements of the mansion are such, we are informed, as to give very little opportunity for family life. Even Mrs. Harrison and the other ladies and children of the family are exposed to intrusion from the callers upon the President who come for business reasons purely. There is not a well regulated private home in which this would be tolerated.

Mr. Cleveland and his wife escaped a good deal of unpleasant intrusiveness by living a great deal of the time at their country residence, known as Red Top or Oak View. Mr. Harrison has not the means to purchase such a residence, and could hardly hope to acquire one without being scandalized. Mr. Cleveland, it will be remembered, was accused of accepting Red Top as a present from a syndicate of real estate speculators who, by placing the gift at the farthest end of their property, succeeded in getting a boulevard run through it at the city's expense, thus greatly enhancing the value of their land. Gen. Grant made some investments in Washington, and was accused of all sorts of crookedness. The accusations may have been untrue in both cases, but if so they furnish even a stronger admonition to Mr. Harrison to keep his hands off. Let his good wife have the room she wants. It will hardly cost cents for the dollars that were spent in building the boulevard to Mr. Cleveland's house. And it will enable the President to spend more of his time in the city and give closer attention to official duty.

The Harrisons are very frank in stating what they want. Their manner is in admirable contrast to that of Gov. Hill in obtaining the furniture for his executive mansion. And the critics of Mrs. Harrison are friendly to the scheme of putting Mr. Hill in the White House in 1893. If he should get there, with a Democratic Congress to back him, it is not improbable that the present White House would be pulled down, and a structure costing millions erected on a more eligible and healthful site. Mrs. Harrison's request for a private apartment is a very modest one by comparison, and should be granted without subjecting that most excellent lady or even Baby McKee to scandal.

THE GOVERNOR GIVES IT UP.

The Buffalo Courier is unduly anxious to have the next United States Senator chosen from among the great Democrats of Buffalo. If it will wait till we get a Democratic Legislature, no doubt Buffalo will get a representative of its own in the Senate, whom all due consideration should be paid. —Albany Times, Item.

The Times, which is inclined to be funny at the expense of its Buffalo contemporary, is the Albany mouthpiece of Gov. Hill, who has been accused of the stupendous folly of contemplating the possibility of a Democratic Legislature, and of even being willing to throw away money in the endeavor to realize his dream. The Times's advice reminds us of the political joke of the late John G. Saxe away back in the fifties, when he served for several years as the standing candidate of the Vermont Democracy for Governor, while he spent his time between poems in editing the Burlington Free Press. After one of his nominations a friend remarked to him: "Mr. Saxe, you are rather young to be Governor." The poet responded with a wink: "I will be old enough when I am elected." If Buffalo expects the next Democratic Senatorship she should put some of her very youngest men in training. Mr. Sheehan has been mentioned, but he is several years too old. As for the Governor who allows his organ to speak in this dubious and sarcastic fashion, he has probably awakened to a realizing sense that it is uncertain business to try to buck the Republican locomotive off the Legislative bridge. In other words, he gives it up.

Mouth and the Man I Sing.

I love the man who knows it all.
From East to West, from North to South;
Who knows all things both great and small,
And tells it with his tongue and mouth.
Who holds a listening world in awe,
While he works his iron jaw!

Offices, in evening's holy calm,
When twilight softens sight and sound,
And angels wait to catch his words,
This fellow brings his mouth around.
With his long zap that can tire
The eight-day clock's impatient ire.

His good strong mouth, He wields it well!
He works it day and night, and never ceases;
Not Samson's jawbone famed could tell
Such mighty deeds upon the earth.
He pulls the threadle open wide,
And works his hand on either side.

Up hill and down, through swamp and sand,
It never stops, it never fails;
Through air and sky, over sea and land,
He talks and talks, and talks, and talks,
And talks, and talks, and talks, and talks,
And talks, and talks, and talks, and talks.

Good Lord, from evils fierce and dire,
Save us this day, O Father, from the power
Of wickedness, and from the power of sin;
From wickedness, and from the power of sin;
From wickedness, and from the power of sin;
From wickedness, and from the power of sin.

insisted that the Hudson river was the western boundary of Connecticut. But there is Columbia, up in Tolland county, named after the great discoverer. Why shouldn't it have a fair show for this exhibition business?
—Hartford Courant.

The Standard Oil Trust is the Democratic party's source of supplies. The fact is never disclaimed except in the heat of an important campaign. Democratic papers regard Col. Rice's connection with the Standard as a perfectly natural arrangement, calling for no particular comment, but they would be seriously alarmed if the seductive Matthew Stanley Quay should go a wooing that powerful ally of their own. The alliance between the Standard Oil Company and the Democratic party is as well established a fact as the pact between the National Democracy and the Mormon church. —Buffalo Express.

In Ohio the prohibitionists have put a full stake in the field, for the pleasure of seeing how many votes they can muster in that state after their overwhelming defeat elsewhere. The prohibitionists might do much good to the cause of temperance by promoting the passage of laws to prevent liquor adulteration. But prohibition is not likely to give any further trouble to the present generation, and the next will be fully capable of taking care of themselves. For the present, at least, the prohibitionists ought to give the country a rest. —Philadelphia Record.
